

Committee on Ways and Means

Fact Sheet - Social Security “Totalization” Agreements

Totalization Agreements are bilateral agreements between the United States and another country to coordinate their Social Security programs. The Social Security Administration (SSA) has totalization agreements in force with 20 countries (listed below). A totalization agreement serves two purposes:

- Eliminates the need to pay Social Security taxes in both countries when U.S. companies send workers to the other country (and vice versa).
- Protects benefit eligibility for workers who divide their careers between the two countries.

Three Main Groups Benefit from Totalization Agreements:

- Multinational companies & their employees - Under current law, when U.S. employers send workers to another country, the employer and employee must pay Social Security taxes in both countries. Under a totalization agreement, they would only pay Social Security taxes for the country where the employee works. If the work is “temporary” (less than five years), they would only pay U.S. Social Security taxes.
- Workers with careers divided over two countries - Under current law, a worker may have worked a full career, but not enough under either the U.S. Social Security system or that of the other country to qualify for benefits. Under a totalization agreement, the worker may combine work credits from both countries to qualify for benefits in either country or both. Social Security benefits are prorated to reflect credits earned in the U.S. system.
- Non-citizen workers and their dependents living abroad - Under current law, non-citizens living outside the U.S. for more than six months may not receive benefits unless they meet certain exceptions. A totalization agreement overrides this requirement.

Statistics on Currently Existing Totalization Agreements

- More than 94,000 beneficiaries receive more than $15 million per month collectively under current totalization agreements.
- U.S. companies save about $800 million annually by not paying foreign Social Security taxes under current totalization agreements. Foreign companies save about $200 million annually by not paying U.S. Social Security taxes.

Procedure for Totalization Agreement Approval

- In the United States, once the Commissioner of Social Security signs a totalization agreement, it goes through a series of subsequent approvals (in order) from the State Department, White House and Congress. The totalization agreement goes into effect automatically unless the U.S. House of Representatives or the U.S. Senate adopts a resolution of disapproval within 60 days (counting days when either body is in session) of the date the President transmits the agreement to Congress. Congress has never rejected a totalization agreement.

Current Totalization Agreements

The United States currently has Social Security agreements with Canada, Chile, South Korea, Australia and most of Western Europe.

Country	Effective Date	Country	Effective Date
Italy	November 1, 1978	Portugal	August 1, 1989
Germany	December 1, 1979	Netherlands	November 1, 1990
Switzerland	November 1, 1980	Austria	November 1, 1991
Belgium	July 1, 1984	Finland	November 1, 1992
Norway	July 1, 1984	Ireland	September 1, 1993
Canada	August 1, 1984	Luxembourg	November 1, 1993
United Kingdom	January 1, 1985	Greece	September 1, 1994
Sweden	January 1, 1987	South Korea	April 1, 2001
Spain	April 1, 1988	Chile	December 1, 2001
France	July 1, 1988	Australia	October 1, 2002

In February 2004, the Commissioner of Social Security also signed a totalization agreement with Japan. That agreement has not yet been transmitted to Congress. More detailed information about these totalization agreements can be found at <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/international/>.